Join the canoe Family

kw'cháys is a 30-foot Coast Salish canoe commissioned in 2018 to celebrate CapU's 50th anniversary. The canoe is incorporated into convocation and new student orientation to symbolize the beginning and end of student journeys at CapU. Following cultural protocol, the University hosts ceremonies to awaken Skw'cháys every spring and put him to sleep every fall.

Ses siyam (Ray Natraoro) and Xats'alanexw siyam (Victor Harry) carved the seaworthy hunting canoe in the winter of 2019, giving students, employees and the community the unique opportunity to witness the transformation from tree to canoe.

The stunning black-and-red canoe was named in a moving ceremony led by leaders of the Skwxwú7mesh (Squamish) Nation that same year. The canoe is part of ongoing efforts to Indigenize and decolonize education at the University and affirm CapU as an inclusive place for Indigenous peoples.

CapU is on a pathway of learning how to be a responsible canoe family and how to honour its relationship with Indigenous peoples and with Skw'cháys.

"We don't select the tree. The tree chooses us because it was meant to be a canoe. The wood is the master, I'm only the tool... We make a spiritual connection with the tree."

Master Carver Ses siyam
