GENERAL INFORMATION:

Can I take any class and more than one class?

Yes to both questions if the live online/in person class dates do not conflict. However, we strongly recommend that new students take one course in their first term, so you have an idea of work/ life/ school balance. Note that online and mixed mode courses require the same amount of work and effort as in person courses and you will have approximately 5-6 hours of course work per week.

When can I register for classes?

- For courses starting in January 2023, registration begins in early November 2022.
- For courses starting in September 2023, registration begins in early July 2023.

Can I get on a class list early?

Yes. Contact Anna Delaney adelaney@capilano.ca if you would like to be placed on a draft class list. This way you will receive early notification for registering in your course and we can provide further information about how our programs can help meet your career goals.

Do I have to take the courses in any particular order? No.

You may take PADM courses in any order. New students generally start with the next course available in their regional area. Our core courses (PADM 200, 201, 202 & 203) appear in each regional area in specific rotating sequence. The program was designed so that regardless of which course a student started with, if you continued taking a core course each term (fall and spring terms), they would see each of the core courses in their regional area over those 4 terms.

Please see next page

What safety measures will be taken for in-person delivery? For on campus courses (North Vancouver and Lonsdale locations) guidelines put in place by the Ministry of Advanced Education under direction of PHO will be followed. See the University’s Campus Ready and Campus Safety. For courses held in hotels, PHO Orders in effect for ‘Gatherings and Events’ on the course dates for will apply.
