

Capilano University

Arts & Entertainment Management Diploma

Bring artists to new heights

In the Arts and Entertainment Management (AEM) diploma program at Capilano University, you'll gain the skills to manage bands, theatre troupes, dancers, actors and more in B.C.'s thriving entertainment industry.

Gain the arts management skills to succeed

In this hands-on two-year diploma program, you'll start by learning the principles and practices of arts, business, venue, festival and community management.

In year two, you'll tackle weightier topics like ethics, marketing, financial management and artist development.

Get work before you graduate

As you get closer to completing your diploma, you'll work with your instructors to arrange two practicum placements at community arts and entertainment organizations.

AEM grads have worked at record labels, talent agencies, venues, music promoters and event companies.
