

Documentary Certificate

Become a storyteller

As a documentary filmmaker, crafting compelling non-fiction narratives using images and sound is how you push forward solutions to help create a better world. If you're looking to bring your creative vision to life on screens large and small, Capilano University's eight-month Documentary certificate program is for you.

Build the technical skills to succeed

With a strong emphasis on story development the program is modeled on a professional production cycle. You'll build the foundational skills needed to fundraise, produce, light, direct, write and edit documentary or factual entertainment with mentorship from our experienced instructors.

Work collaboratively and develop ideas

Documentary graduates have gone on to make award-winning films and work in the non-fiction industry as writers, researchers, camera operators and editors on independent features, broadcast documentaries and television series across Canada and around the world.

Career paths

- Documentary filmmaker
- Instructional video producer
- Interactive media designer
- Public health videographer
- Television producers

Program

Documentary Certificate

8 months | Full-time | Starts in Sept | North Vancouver Campus