

University One for Indigenous Learners

Choose the program designed for you to thrive

University One at Capilano University is an eight-month program for students of Indigenous ancestry. During the program, you'll develop the skills to succeed at university, learning in small classes tailored for growing your abilities in vital areas such as reading, writing and problem-solving.

Gain credits for your degree, diploma or certificate

Completing University One will give you 12 100-level credits toward degree, diploma and certificate programs at CapU. The courses cover writing strategies, mathematics and study skills, and include a 100-level elective. Each course features Indigenous content, including storytellers, guest speakers, field trips and support from Elders.

Join us at the Kéxwusm-áyakn Student Centre

The Kéxwusm-áyakn Student Centre is a welcoming place to meet new people, find support, relax, share and study. The Centre is also the home of the Indigenous Student Team, who are here to assist with any questions and help you flourish at CapU.

Find out more

Indigenous students who want to pursue post-secondary studies and access funding programs can contact their local band office for additional information.